

Project narrative

The research objective of this study is to systematically address the concerns of autonomous robot safety, thereby creating safer and more capable robotic systems. This in turn will improve the quality of life for millions who could benefit from the application of robotic technologies in health care.